New Jersey's Vote. A prominent business house in Wheel

ing, in the course of a business letter a few days ago to a house in Newark, New Jersey, asked the following question: "Is it a fact that New Jersey is going back on General Hancock in November?"

To which inquiry the Newark house replied as follows:

"The indications are that New Jersey will go for Garfield and Arthur, based upon the unpopular Democratic nomination for Governor and the strength of the Republican nomination. On the National issue there are many changes for Garfield and Arthur and none for Hancock and glish. On the tariff question, Hancock made a bad mess of it, and the in-nce of the New York Sun's comments, with other matters, works against Han-cock and English to such an extent that there is every probability of G. and A. carrying the State." [Comments of the Intelligencer.]
Why not? Most persons are not aware ow close the vote was last year in New Jersey between the Republicans and Democrats. The latter, in legislative elections, only had 1,263 plurality. The vote stood as follows: Republicans, 79,325; Democrats, 80,588; Greenbackers, 3,914. Both branches of the New Jersey legislature are Republican. There has to be only a very slight change from last year's vote to give the Republicans the State, and that change the Newark house says is importers of New York City with his at tempt to play fast and loose on the tariff question, after having endorsed the platform of his party. They are also disgusted with the position of the Democratic leaders on the question. For instance, the New York Commercial-Bulletin—a non political paper—of Wednesday says:

Instead of meeting the plea on its merits, by showing that while their opponents favored high wages as a consequence of high duties and high prices, they favored cheapness with low though remunerative wages, they have tacilty conneded the one-sided argument of the other side and contemptibly turned their back on their principles has never been exhibited in the whole history of our political contests. It is not merely that a Senator deemed worthy of nomination for the Presidency has speken mincing words to propriate protection as much as the rival candidate. A party whose spokesmen can thus adjure its fundamental principles, in response to a local clamor, that he virtually favors protection as much as the rival candidate. A party whose spokesmen can thus adjure its fundamental principles, in the face of a contest that boldly challenges those principles, has sush to the fast stoge of demonstration and declared itself unit to be intrusted with the representation of any great issue in national politics. It is the last over act needed to demonstrate how unterly that party has lost respect for its mest cherished traditions and how imperative the necessity is that public opinion should be represented by a reconstruction of parties.

The Wheeling Register has paraded, day after day, all sorts of assertions about Garfield and the tariff, in the hope of arresting the stampede now going on from the Democratic ranks on account of the free trade proclivities of the party. It has several times asserted that "Garfield voted for free trade in salt. Nothing could be further from the truth than this assertion. We have before us a copy of the Democratic Campaign Text Book, "issued by the National Democratic Committee," on page 250 of which is an article headed, "Garfield Against Free Salt." We be gleave to copy this article entire for the edification of those who are studiously informed by the Register that "Garfield voted for free trade in salt." moved.
Sec. 3. That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.
Mr. Conger objected to its consideration, but the objection was overruled by the Sneaker. Mr. Conger then moved to adjourn, and on that motion demanded the yeas and nays. The vote being taken the veas were 97, nays 128. Mr. Garfield signified his opposition to the bill by voting YEA. The motion to adjourn having failed, the question occurred for the motion of Mr. Hatch to suspend the rules and pass the bill. The yeas and nays being called for the question was decided in the negative, yeas 115, nays 115, Mr. Garfield being recorded among those not voting. I wish the correction to be made. I voted second the motion.

So the Journal was corrected, and Mr. Garfield's vote was recorded in the nega-tive—(See Congressional Record, January 14th 1880, page 4)

Thus the readers of the Intelligences will see that while the Wheeling Registe is proclaiming that "Garfield voted for free trade in salt," in order to make votes against him among tariff people here in West Virginia, the National Democrafic Committee are proclaiming that he voted 'against free salt" in order to make votes gainst him among the free traders.

This is the nice little game of shuttle cock that seems to have been arranged be tween them. And the beauty about the egister's assertion is that the "truthfu Here is the translation the Philadelphia James" editor says that it "can be verified Bullelin gives of the proclamation of the managers of the Superb that the State of Indiana was improperly carried against paign committee cite page and date in the same book to prove a directly oppo site assertion. Isn't it lovely to see these brethren thus working together for the good of the party?

An Interview with the Editor of the Wheeling Intelligencer on the Subject.

The following report of a conversation with General Garfield was published in the Post of December 7, 1880, copied from the Wheeling (W. Va.,) INTELLIGENCER O a few day's previous date. It should effectually set at rest all doubts as to the oundness of his views on the Chinese soundness of his views on the Chinese question:

"The writer of these lines, while traveling west a few days ago, fell in with General Garfield, of Obio, on the cars, and had a long and interesting conversation with him on the leading topics of the day.

"The future of our country," said the General, "is a great problem, and, for that matter, so is the future of Europe and of the whole world. This reminds me," he went on to say, "of a conversation I had with a very intelligent gentleman in New York City a few days ago. He had just returned from Europe, where he had been traveling for two years, and was in a despondent state of mind over the impressions he had received while abroad. He detailed these impressions at length to me and in a way that was indeed well calculated to make a systematic impression. It was the prevailing impression. ion. It was the prevailing impression among very many of the thinking men o Europe that society there was being un-dermined by certain irresistible influences Europe that society there was being undermined by certain irresistible influences. In the first pisce, it was honeycombed by widespread and still wider spreading infidelity. The Christian religion is no longer a supreme influence over the minds and consciences of the masses. The leaders of thought, the scholars of England, France and Germany, have popularized unbelief, and in France it has pessed into a current remark that only women and children are any longer to be seen at church.

"In the second place, there is great restlesses among the masses in regard to the inequalities of society. Why should the few be so very rich and the many so very poor? is the burden of their inquiry, and also of their conversation one with another. This undertone of discontent is visibly growing, and is finding expression through channels that are unsettling the foundation stones of the whole social fabric in Europe. Socialism in Germany, Nihilism in Russis, Communism in France, and Charitsm in England were all at work, and the masses were being leavened with these principles. This aversion to king.

ration of this "tale of a traveler," to speak of what he himself had seen in San Francisco. "I have seen," said he, "in a space no greater than the length and height of this sleeping car berth, in a Chinese tendement quarter in San Francisco, the home of twelve Chinamen. In that space they actually lived—yes, actually lived most of their time. There they crouched (all doubled up), and there they couched (all doubled up), and there they cooked, ate, slept, and, in a word, lived. They cooked with a little lamp a mess of stuff that they import from China, which, like their rice food, is very cheap, and a mere plitance in the way of earnings on the street will supply them food and clothes for an indefinite time. A few cents per day is more to them than a dollar to the commonest American laborer. Hence the lowest grade of poor paid labor retires before them as it would before a pestilence.

"This is not all. They have no assimilation whatever to Caucasian civilization. In this respect they differ wholly from the Negro. He wants all that we want. He adopts our civilizatine—professes our religion—works for our wages, and is a customer for everything that civilization produces. Hence (using a figure of phsylology) we can take him up in the circulation of the body politic and assimilate himmake a man and brother of him, as the phrase goes; but not so in the least degree with the Chinaman.

"And this brings me to say," said General Garfield, before leaving the cars, "that one of the great questions that now press upon Congress and the country for immediate attention and solution is what shall we do with reference to Chinese immigration? We have always refused to citizenize them; shall we continue the treaty under which they are immigrating to our shores? But of this we will talk further when you come down to Washington."
